US envoy: War games our devotion to peace

THE ANNOUNCED military exercises between the Philippines and the United States are about "working together in the spirit of the Manila Defense Treaty" and in keeping with the two allies' "heightened cooperation on the breadth of bilateral, regional and global issues," US Ambassador to Manila Harry Thomas II said yesterday.

The four-jet mission "about our common devotion to peace that has sustained our alliance through the years," Thomas said in a statement from the US Embassy.

"Over many decades, we have forged an enduring friendship and this experience can only make it stronger," Thomas said.

PHILIPPINE officials yesterday ignored China's demand to withdraw Filipino vessels from Panatag Shoal, declaring "that's our territory" and warning Chinese vessels to back off.

The officials said a Philippine Coast Guard search and rescue vessel, BRP Ilan, along with an anthropological survey mission aboard the MT Sainag and a fishing boat, remained in the area, facing off two Chinese maritime surveillance vessels and a fishing boat.

On Monday, China demanded that all Filipino vessels clear the area, which it calls Huangyan Island and which is known internationally as Scarborough Shoal, and sent an aircraft to buzz a Philippine fishing boat in the second such incident since Saturday.

"We're also telling their ships to do the same," presidential spokesperson Rody Go around said yesterday. "That's our territory and we're also saying the same thing to their ships."

Go around said talks between the Philippines and China were continuing. "Filipinos have not disappointed," he said, and the fact "that we're not a plot here."

China summons PH envoy over standoff

BELLING—China said on Wednesday that the Philippines is violating maritime law by claiming a shoal in the South China Sea and demanding that it's request to take the dispute to an international court.

"We believe it runs counter to historical facts and violates the law," said Liu Weimin, a spokesperson for the foreign ministry.

Military vessels from the country have been facing off over a fishing incident since last week near the Scarborough

Shoal in the South China Sea, which Manila calls First Philippine Sea. Both sides claim sovereignty over the maritime territory.

Vice Foreign Minister Fu Ying "strongly condemned" the Philippine charge of defiance, Alex Chua, on Sunday and again on Wednesday, Liu said.

She pointed out that the Philippines military vessels' harassment of Chinese fishermen and fishing boats have down

De Lima reports on high-profile fugitives

By Gabriel Candiano, Inquirer Northern Luzon

DAVURAN CITY—The trail of fugitive Maj. Gen. Jovito Peralta has gone cold.

But not those of two other high-profile fugitives, former Gov. Jod Reyes of Palawan province and his brother, Carlos Meyer Reyes. Reyes Jr., held wanted for the murder of environmentalist broadcaster Gerry Ortega in Pecarro Prison City last year.

A member for another law-breaking public official, Rep. Eulalia Saldaña Jr. of Oriental Mindoro, has been convicted of perjury charges involving the death of his wife 10 years ago.

Speaking at a news conference here on Wednesday, Justice Secretary Leila de Lima said the standard for Peralta may have reached a dead end.

De Lima said the authorities had stopped receiving tips from informants on the whereabouts of the retired Army general.

GLOBE BUSINESS SCORES A HOLE-IN-ONE WITH ITS ANNUAL G-TOUR

Solutions that fit.

Globe Business recently hosted the 2012 G-Tour at the exclusive Alibang Country Club in Muntinlupa City. The event gathered together more than 190 golf enthusiasts representing Globe's valued enterprise customers for a day of friendly competition and good company.

Already on its eleventh year, the G-Tour is one of the most awaited events in the local golf-playing business community. It was the perfect venue for Globe executives, including International and Business Markets Head Gil Genabon and Globe Business Head Jesus Ramirez, together with their esteemed clients to interact, network and connect with each other in a more relaxed and congenial setting.

The tournament adopted a 9-B max scramble with sliding tee-box format, designed to foster teamwork between the participants and balance the playing abilities of the various competing teams. Ultimately, Ramon del Vexos of Schenker Philippines, Joseph Alon of Pines, Stephen Yu of Monde Moyn and Dennis Tio of Globe were the golfers who walked away with the top honors that day. Over 16 exciting prizes were also raffled off to the lucky G-Tour participants. Among the major prizes were Apple iPads and an iPhone 4S, vacation packages at Bonanza Springs LA, a Nike ian Sir and a Club Car golf cart. Everyone definitely went home a winner last March 10.

Grace Jano-Castillo, Globe Business Head for Enterprise Segments, conveyed her gratitude to all those who took part and contributed to the resounding success of the 2012 G-Tour. "We are thankful to our customers for always taking the time, year after year, to participate in this exciting tournament. We appreciate their unwavering support and the fruitful partnerships. Hence, we promise that we will continue to deliver excellent products and services, and go beyond expectations in the way we serve them."

'Litratistas' faded away from park scene

By Dello T. Makar Jr.
Iloilo City

WHEN 78-YEAR-OLD Benito Jim returned to Iloilo City in Quezon province in early 2000 after more than two decades of working in the United States, he first went to the sprawling Purok Park to meet his former buddies.

"Most of them were still gone. Some had already died, others were sick from old age and the rest just clinging on to what was left of the trade just to survive," Jim recalled.

Jim was once president of the Iloilo Purok Park Photographers Association, which was founded in the 1960s and composed of Ilocosians playing their trade at the park in front of the old Capitol building. The members were Ilocosians there from decades back, ready to click away their M21 single lens reflex cameras at stallions for amateur photos.

"With a deposit of P2 or sometimes less, we took photos of park visitors, after a few hours or at the agreed date, we give them their newly developed black-and-white photos for which the customer paid in full," Jim said.

He recalled that the photographers would often arrive at parks and find visitors to the park's beautiful open air background for their shots. "We even reached our customers on how to create smiling faces," he added.

The chain reaction, he said, had them all prospering, mostly because of the growing popularity of their day-off.

Empowering visitors

Now of them are more than 100, and, citing the advent of the iPhone and digital cameras, Jim said that the photos are taken for free.

"The park photographer is now getting extinct," the old man lamented.

Roger Gonzalez, 75, still waits for park goers on the side of the metal benches. An experienced film-film camera lens around his neck.

In the good old days, Gonzalez said, earning P500 in 1980 a day was possible. Then, he often made the day without any clients.

The 62-year-old Purok Park is one of the original urban parks in the country, featuring four blocks, it is frequented by students rehearsing dance routines.

Rehabilitation

A massive core in the center also divides as a landmark where top musicians in the 1970s and 1980s used to perform for free residents occupying two-blocked galleries. However, in early 2000, the galleries were demolished when the park underwent rehabilitation during the administration of then Gov. Widesito Elera Jr.

The original nation design was lost when the ground was flattened and the area between the first and second blocks was replaced as an arena area. That most of the times, the place serves as parking space.

Presently from the city residents, Iloilo the provincial government to shelve its plan to alter the other original low-level houses of the other blocks. That damage had already been done. They already destroyed the original beauty of the park," Jim said.

A stone map of Iloilo, made up of buildings representing the municipalities, and a globe in the middle of a landscape with concrete images of a teacher, policeman, and worker and white-collar class employees are found in the park.

Going digital

Enrique Ramos, 64, who joined the park photographers in 1990, is trying to able the digital explosion. He planned a successful photo and short camera that he brought for P2,000 during a powerlifting session.

But even with a digital camera, getting a customer is a daily struggle, Ramos said. To save costs, he does carpentry work in construction projects.

The Public Information Office, 51, who brought his first digital for P20,000, the shift from film to digital (average 500) or 17 (some film backs used to be used).

Now, he hopes that professional photographers will leave from the city, the crowded visitors that a moment more taken by professional photographers was much superior in quality and content than that happened when taken with a cell phone.

"I hope that beautiful photos in a frame is more memorable and exciting to look at than just being one of many photo files in a personal computer or cell phone," Jim photographed.

Judge inhibits self from Camp John Hay case

By Amy R. Boston

THE PROSECUTOR could not be over the Camp John Hay development in Baguio City last week further delay of a judge inhibited himself from the case following disclosure that his political husband had financial ties with Camp John Hay Development Corp. (CJHD).

The CJHD, the private developer owned by the husband of Judge Maria Lina Tabara, has been in the spotlight for the past year. The CJHD is a joint venture between the private developer and the Philippine National Development Authority (PNDA), the agency mandated to transform former military bases into public use, such as shopping malls, sports centers, and other facilities.

In a statement it issued yesterday, the CJHD and Judge Maria Lina Tabara had inhibited herself from the case during a hearing on April 10 because of her husband's alleged "close financial ties with the CJHD, a fact that she did not immediately reveal at the start of the case."

"The judge's husband stands in a conflict of interest and she immediately delayed the resolution of the case," the CJHD said. "The CJHD will continue to work with the PNDA to ensure the timely completion of the project."

The CJHD has claimed that CJHD need the government's $200 million to cost over-

Indefinite TRO

Tabara had earlier granted CJHD's extended and indefinite temporary restraining orders (TROs) that effectively postponed the CJHD from taking over CJHD's land, property within the Camp John Hay Special Economic Zone (CJHSEZ).

According to the CJHD, Tabara revealed during the hearing that her husband had met with the CJHD's lawyer to discuss the case. The CJHD also claimed that Tabara had been receiving campaign contributions from CJHD and its lawyer, Enrique "Jay" Tabara.

CJHD, however, has repeatedly denied the judge's claim of campaign contributions.

The CJHD also cited reports that the judge's husband was a workday body of Jay Tabara, and played golf during CJHD's meetings.

Delinquent

The CJHD said the CJHD had been delinquent in its payments of taxes and interest, for the last of which was the $100,000 under a 25-year loan agreement between the CJHD and CJHD, signed in 1996.

In late 2008, CJHD refused to make any payments at all.

According to the CJHD, CJHD's first request was in August 1999 to defer payments for taxes under a 25-year TRO to prevent a possible government takeover of the CJHD. CJHD said that a three-day TRO was granted on Jan. 26, 2000, which was extended for another 17 days. During the extended hearing on April 27, Tabara required the parties to submit their respective memorandums by March 7 after which she said she would decide.

During a third hearing on April 10, Tabara inhibited herself from the case after disclosing her husband's ties with the CJHD and the CJHD.

The case will be heard off to meet her judge.

Decisions at last

CJHD's attorneys refused the request with CJHD in January 2012 to make payments of its P3.4-billion debt, the CJHD said.

After realizing that it no longer had a working agreement with the government, CJHD's attorneys then filed a TRO to prevent a possible government takeover of the CJHD.

A three-day TRO was granted on Jan. 26, 2000, which was extended for another 17 days. During the extended hearing on April 27, Tabara required the parties to submit their respective memorandums by March 7 after which she said she would decide.

During a third hearing on April 10, Tabara inhibited herself from the case after disclosing her husband's ties with the CJHD and the CJHD.

Anthony triple-double lifts Knicks

NEW YORK—Carmelo Anthony had 25 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists for his second career triple-double as the New York Knicks made 19-3 points to preserve their Atlantic Division title hopes with a 129-102 victory over the Boston Celtics on Tuesday.

38. Knick and New York had scored 25 points for the Knicks, who mounted a second-half points from Paul Pierce and several late free-throw shooting to seal the win. The Celtics' offense while running Boston's offense led to 1-2 points. The Celtics were also hit with a 1-2 points after their fifth straight victory with a victory.

Instead, the Knicks staggered down with a second-half 14 points in a 74-point first half and equaled their season high by leading 19-3 at 33rd minute of the game. They improved to 14-

Customs weeds out 'fake' press

Bureau monitors 'real' newsmen thru new IDs

By Jerome B. B. B.

IT'S PROBABLY the most "covered" government agency, considering that almost 120 media persons want to keep watch on its operations, one way or another.

The Bureau of Customs (BOC) yesterday began implementing a media accreditation policy purportedly designed to weed out "fake journalists" who are known to harass press bodies to engage in illicit activities in the Customs.

Two groups—the National Media Association and the Customs Journalists Association—yesterday questioned the policy before the Supreme Court, saying it constituted prior restraint, but the high tribunal did not issue a temporary restraining order.

The BOC issued the first batch of 50 IDs to what it considered "legitimate" media representatives, including reporters, photographers and cameramen—those 40 print and broadcast media companies.

The agency's Public Information and Assistance Division (PIAD) said the 50 cards were "radio-frequency" and could be used to monitor the "activities" of their bearers.

According to PIAD chief Bernita Albaladejo, at least 117 media workers applied for accreditation under the new policy, but only 50 were given the new IDs while the rest, mostly representing weekly tabloids, were rejected.

The media accreditation policy was introduced by Customs Commissioner Ruffa Basco five months ago through Customs Memorandum Order 77-2011.

Basco earlier said the order would enable the agency to weed out "fake" media persons and monitor legitimate ones who may be engaging in illicit money-making activities, such as selling to exporters or go-brokers for smuggling, or accepting payoffs from smugglers, tax evaders and other officials.

The so-long a claim, the BOC was practically an open field for any export—real or not. This media endorsement has brought about an unsettling number of responses covering the BOC," he said.

Basco stressed that the order was not issued to restrict press freedom but to set the "ground rules" for media work in the bureau while "protecting" the interests of legitimate personnel and legitimate reporters covering the BOC.

"There's nothing wrong with knowing the people entering one's place, it only for security reasons," he added.

Basco and his cabinet cancelled the president of the two media associations covering BOC, and some reclassified reporters to get inputs for the new policy.

5 smart ways to keep heat out

The new reality is that the world is getting warmer. Find out here how Arya Residences is future-proofed to keep your homes cool and pleasant.

In a 2010 report published in Scientific American, Jay Lawrence, chief of climate analysis in National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), warned that "warmer than average global temperatures have become the new normal." NOAA is a US federal agency tasked to provide a comprehensive understanding of the role of the oceans, coasts and atmosphere in the global ecosystem.

With the careful study of the sun's path, Arya Residences is future-proofed to keep your homes cool and pleasant.

Lawrence adds, "The global temperature has increased more than 1°C since 1900 and the rate of warming since the 1980s has been about three times greater than the century-wide trend."

The writing on the wall is loud and clear.

memory will have to rely on strong and robust air conditioning.

To combat this scorching heat, Arya Residences has adopted a two-pronged approach: mitigation and adaptation. Mitigation requires us to lessen our carbon footprint and adopt intelligent methods to keep the heat out of our homes. Adaptation means accepting the risk of climate change and working towards reducing its vulnerability to its adverse effects. It involves a close collaboration with the planet, the latter providing protection and shelter.

Present-day engineering and architecture should be able to meet the demands of the future. This is why Arya Residences is future-proofed to ensure homeowners to build on from here, much heat while easily helping to keep the indoor environment cool.

1. Design smartly with the sun.

With the team of experts' careful study of the sun's movement via a solar tracking system, Arya Residences can calculate the best time to open the shutters. Instead of heat from the sun hitting the building, the sun's rays are directed away from the building, reducing the heat gain. This is achieved by using a solar tracking system that can rotate 180 degrees, allowing the building to face the sun at any time of the day.

Brighter and cooler homes demand less energy consumption, thus reducing the use of non-renewable resources. In fact, it is estimated that the electricity cost is saved off the bill. This also helps to keep the environment green.

2. Build to last.

Arya Residences' design, which is not only green and eco-friendly, but also energy-efficient, is designed to provide protection for the residents' comfort and convenience. For example, balconies in most of the units are wider to provide generous living space and allow cross-ventilation for the units. Large windows are also placed to keep the sun out.

3. Smart glass protection.

Arya Residences is the first and only residential development in the country to afford the luxury of double-glazed, low-E glass windows from granitite's Insulux. This smart window system works as double sun-protection, keeping the units from too much heat. The space between the double panes is filled with argon gas, which is a better insulator than air, while the solar glass coating keeps the sun out.

4. Harnessing the power of the wind.

To keep the units cool, architects and engineers have made sure to position Arya Residences' units to receive the right amount of naturally flowing breeze, harnessing the power of pre-developed patterns, direction and velocity.

Given the units have light, openable windows and accommodating balcony doors, residents can rely on the wind to cool down and enjoy the soft sea wind. This helps to keep the units pleasant and to reduce the need for air conditioning.

What's good is that with the latest engineering designs, and the use of energy-efficient air conditioning, AC-related energy consumption is cut by as much as 25%, with reduced resource consumption, reduction of greenhouse gas emissions, and a better environment.

5. Unique island landscape for better ventilation.

Unlike other condominiums which are tightly clustered with other buildings, Arya Residences is located in a unique island location in the prestigious McKinley Parkway in Bonifacio Global City. This location is a natural advantage.

Due to its location, the property has a unique advantage that will help keep the units cool. This is because it is not directly affected by the surrounding buildings and is not directly affected by the sun's rays.

Considering up to 10% air-conditioning cost and with the aid of passive cooling provided by natural breezes and water features, the complex is expected to have a low energy footprint. This is a significant step towards a greener, more sustainable future.

To experience the comfort and convenience of living at Arya Residences, you may also visit the Arya Residences Model Suite at the Arya and Sales Pavilion, McKinley Parkway, 7th Ave., BGC. To get there from EDSA/Ayala Ave, take McKinley Road towards BGC, cross the Pasay Motorway, take the Bonifacio Avenue Exit, BGC, then turn right at 7th Ave, towards McKinley Parkway.

MANY YIELD TO THE POWER OF THE SUN. ONLY A FEW HAVE THE POWER TO CONTROL IT.

AT ARYA, INTELLIGENT DESIGN THAT LETS LIGHT IN AND HEAT OUT IS THE WAY TO LEED.

ARYA
RESIDENCES
McKinley Parkway, Bonifacio Global City

At Arya Residences, smart architecture beats conventional wisdom. For instance, we've oriented our buildings away from direct sunlight so that it does not reflect up the units unnecessarily. The heat and noise from the sun is minimized. The smart windows used in the entire building let in more natural light. The spacious balconies in each unit are designed for more than aesthetic purposes.

They took the smartest test of them all. All these add up to considerable energy savings. One that to design, not luck.

Arya is the first LEED registered residential development in the country on target for a Gold certification.

Visit the Arya showcase at The First today and experience the Gold standard in green living.

Live Well. Live Right.

Greyson's chance

I never "Waiting Outside the Lines" with a group of songwriters. My serious contribution to the song was very considerable as they were everything I wish to.

Things happened very fast from your "Vegas" video on YouTube to appearing on "Vegas" to your signing a record deal. How does it all make sense to you now?

I have been writing and performing my music for two years now. I have been writing and performing my music for two years now. I have been writing and performing my music for two years now.

When this was it to become a professional musician? I think it's about time to become a professional musician. I think it's about time to become a professional musician. I think it's about time to become a professional musician.

Where this was it to become a professional musician? I think it's about time to become a professional musician. I think it's about time to become a professional musician. I think it's about time to become a professional musician.

How and Charlie were both directed on YouTube. Do you get to watch other videos of interesting but unknown talents? I also always look by videos on YouTube of both the same thing that I did. I always look by videos on YouTube of both the same thing that I did.

How do you intend to be recognized as an artist in the next few years? I want to be recognized as an artist in the next few years. I want to be recognized as an artist in the next few years. I want to be recognized as an artist in the next few years.

You obviously love Lady Gaga. Which other musicians inspire you and why? Many different artists and music genres inspire me. I love rock, electronic, rap, pop, and I really am starting to love them. I really am starting to love them. I really am starting to love them.

Many different artists and music genres inspire me. I love rock, electronic, rap, pop, and I really am starting to love them. I really am starting to love them. I really am starting to love them.

How breaks in your schedule these days, and are you still in school? My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school. My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school. My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school.

My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school. My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school. My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school. My schedule is pretty packed these days, and I'm still in school.

What's the best part of being in the music scene at such a young age? I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself. I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself. I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself.

I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself. I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself. I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself. I think the best thing is that I can be creative and express myself.
